COMMONLY SEEN FISH ON VELAA HOUSE REEF

FISH IDENTITY	SCIENTIFIC NAME	HABITAT	FUN FACT
Blue-fin jack 	Caranx melampygus	Seen circling around the islands amongst the reef crest and reef slope in search of food. Very fast and robust fish.	Known as roving predators, they create distracting situations to capture their unaware prey.
Black-spotted Pufferfish 	Arothron nigropunctatus	Hides during the day and is very shy. Active at night seen in sand flats feeding on invertebrates. Variable in colour from grey to yellow.	When in danger its defense mechanism reacts quickly inflating its body and it becomes a suspended looking ball. They eventually deflate once the danger has subsided.
Sabre squirrelfish 	Sargocentron spiniferum	Found under rocks and overhangs, seen solitary.	Nocturnal fish, feeding on crabs, small fish and shrimp at night.
Oriental sweetlips 	Plectorhinchus vittatus	Found in schools or solitary under boulders and overhangs.	Sweetlip juveniles are very different to their adult form; they go through many changes of appearance and behaviour before becoming an adult. The juvenile Oriental sweetlips looks like a little dancing fish
Dogtooth tuna 	Gymnosarda unicolor	Generally found solitary circling around reefs at a fast pass or in the deep blue.	The tuna fish family are built for speed and are among the fastest fish in the ocean

FISH IDENTITY	SCIENTIFIC NAME	HABITAT	FUN FACT
Maldivian anemonefish 	Amphiprion nigripes	Hides inside the sea anemones (Heteractis magnifica). Seen on shallow reefs up to 15m depth.	Only seen in the Maldives and small communities seen in Sri Lanka. Anemone fish get their name from the living organism which they live inside, an anemone. They use the anemone as a home and shelter from predators because the anemone stings other species; the anemone fish are immune to these stings.
Parrot fish 	Scaridae	Seen on reefs, sleep in crevices and caves at night. Adults often seen in schools, juveniles are solitary or form small groups.	Very colourful, you can hear them feeding on corals which the algae is growing on, helping to keep the reef healthy. They contribute to producing the white sandy beaches we have here in the Maldives.
Blue-Powder Surgeon Fish 	Acanthurus Leucosternon	Found in most clear water habitats to 20m depth.	Given the name surgeon fish because of the spine which is said to be as sharp as a surgeon's knife. Very common to seen beautiful large schools of these fish.
Moorish idol 	Zanclus cornutus	Seen in shallow reefs and deep outer walls. Usually seen alone or in pairs.	Larvae can live more than three months allowing it to drift to near and far locations by the oceans currents allowing it to be distributed throughout the Indo-Pacific.
Vermilion Rock Cod 	Cephalopholis miniata	Seen mostly in coral reefs or rocky bottoms up to 20m deep, normally in small groups.	They are territorial, with one male and 12 females in each group, each female has its own area and the male visits them all individually on a daily basis.

CORAL CARE PROJECT

The Maldives' famous turquoise crystal clear waters wouldn't be possible without the exquisite and fragile coral reefs. Often referred to as the 'Rainforests of the Sea' because of their richness in biodiversity. Coral reefs are the building blocks for shelter, protection, home and a food source for its inhabitants. Its success is measured through a perfect equilibrium for its survival.

We consider ourselves fortunate to be the guardians of the sea that encompasses our island home. We understand the need to safeguard such a precious and finite resource.

Our dedicated Marine Team is currently implementing numerous coral restoration programs in order to conserve our reef. One such program is our Coral Adoption Program.

HOW CAN YOU HELP? ADOPT A CORAL DOME.

What is coral? Rock, animal or plant? Start your Coral Care Project with an introduction to corals to find out these answers, held by our resident Marine Biologist.

COLLECT AND ATTACH THE CORAL FRAGMENTS

Join us on a house reef snorkel to find fragments of broken corals that can be used to attach to your coral dome and grow into large coral colonies.

ATTACH THE CORALS AND PLACE THE DOME

Attach your collected coral fragments securely onto your coral dome. Then snorkel out with the dome to place in an optimal location for your corals to thrive.

Your conservation efforts will not go unnoticed, a coral adoption certificate will be given for your generosity to our reef, along with biannual updates of your corals development. On your next visit to Velaa our Marine Biologist will take you on a complementary coral observation snorkel, giving you the chance to re-attach corals if needed and observe the growth of your coral dome.
